

According to Ian, everything EllisDon does is rooted in their desire to be “be better.” That unrelenting drive is also what attracts clients to the company, both in Vancouver, and around the world.

“We are always seeking to improve, for our clients, for our industry, and for ourselves,” he says.

That drive is also reflected in their total service offering, which is unique in the industry. They have the capacity to manage every stage of a project’s lifecycle – from pre-construction to post-construction, from the initial concept phase to long-term asset management,

